Bio & Introduction

Alicia believes everyone should know their God-given purpose and make the world better by living it out. It fuels her burning desire to help people live and leave a legacy that brings glory and honor to God and joy and fulfillment to themselves. Her blended career in communications and leadership development training spans more than 25 years and equips her to deliver messages and programs that enable you to:

- Release the pain and regrets of the past to live more fully now and in the future.
- Embrace how God truly sees you and reject the negatives that have defined you.
- Apply your skills, talents and life experiences to bring light to dark places in society.
- Ignite your passion to set the world on fire for God.

Alicia is a writer, speaker and trainer who uses her experience as a communications and training professional to equip entrepreneurs, women and teens to use their skills, talents and life experiences to build up the broken places in society.

From media relations to outreach awareness campaigns and from conference speaker to management and leadership development trainer, Alicia uses her entire body of work to deliver three key programs:

- More Than A Business, a program for small business owners who want to change the face and practice of business by demonstrating Christ in the marketplace.
- Fight Like Jesus, a program to help women reclaim and be restored to their true identities.
- My Nehemiah Project, a leadership and development program that teaches teens how to work together to be the solution to many of society's ills.

Alicia is the founder and owner of Idea Haven, a training and communications practice. She holds a bachelor's degree in Journalism from The University of Texas at Austin and a master's degree in Organizational Leadership and Ethics from St. Edward's University in Austin, Texas. In her spare time she enjoys spending time in nature and photography.
